

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16.—The banking situation is getting worrisome again.—The Treasury is bothered about the condition of a lot of banks that have been opened but shouldn't have been. Some of these banks are not going to pass the deposit insurance requirements when the latter go into effect January 1.—Incoming Congressmen, meanwhile, are singing merry Cain because so many banks are kept closed. Constituents back home can't get their money out.—A lot more is going to be heard about the banking situation and it isn't all going to be good.—Henry Wallace, Secretary of Agriculture who sent out the order to kill little pigs, has won the nickname "Herod" Wallace after the King of Judea who sent out the order to kill male babies in every family.—Jonkheer H. M. van der Wyck, secretary of the Netherlands Legation, is Dutch but has a Scotch reputation. The other day he invited a young lady out for dinner and after calling for her, suggested that they dine at the home of the girl's married sister.

NO LOVE LOST

Some of the international horizon-scanners with pipe-lines to F. D. R. predict that the United States and Great Britain are in for an era of none too good relations.—They cite three disturbing factors: 1. War debts, of which Britain probably will not pay more than ten percent; 2. Latin America, where a terrific trade war is raging; 3. The Pacific, where Sir John Simon, British Foreign Secretary, is going to do anything except support American policy.—The Rapidan honeymoon is over.—A. F. H. Wiggin, C. M. G., First Secretary of the British Embassy, is the best golfer in the diplomatic corps. While attached to the British Embassy in Rome he entered the national Italian golf tournament, and to his great surprise came out the winner.

JAPANESE WEDGE

American naval men were worried recently by secret dickerings between the Japanese and Brazil for the construction of a Brazilian naval training ship.—There is a large Japanese colony in Brazil and it looked like the South American wedge on the South American continent.—After some under cover wire-pulling a British firm finally got the job.—Jefferson Caffery is in the picture.

Candle Leads to Arrest of Man on Burglar Charges

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 16.—A candle and the police radio led to the arrest early today of James O'Leary, 46, of 235 Eddy street, on a charge of burglarizing slot machines in the Cooks and Waiters' Union, 111 Jones street. Shortly before daylight a passer-by noticed the flickering light of a candle moving about within the union rooms and called police. They searched neighboring roofs and captured O'Leary with the candle $7.35 allegedly taken from the machines a screwdriver and other tools.

Abbott Last Rites Held Here Saturday

Funeral services for Mrs. Nellie Ruel Abbott were held yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the Sunset Mausoleum. Entombment followed.

Bali bearers were W. T. Helms, Dr. U. S. Abbott, Dr. Frank Fry, Dwight Watson, Andrew McCrohn and Dr. L. A. Martin.

Mrs. Abbott was the wife of Dr. C. L. Abbott and was a pioneer of Richmond.

Faces The Noose

DAVID A. LAMSON, Stanford University Press sales manager, accused of slaying his wife, was found guilty of murder in the first degree by a jury in a San Jose court last night. No recommendation for leniency was made. Under the verdict Judge Syre may be forced to pronounce the death sentence.

Claim Made Joseph Flores Workers Pay Is Too Low Freight Train

Charging that East Bay cannery workers are receiving for their efforts an average of only 18 to 20 cents an hour, J. B. Nathan, representing the International Cannery Workers' Union, announced yesterday he had served cannerymen with an ultimatum which threatened the possible walkout of some 5,000 employees.

Nathan said his organization would ask members of the workers' union, and affiliated locals, to strike if "the demands we have made are not met by Monday."

He declared most of the canneries in the San Francisco Bay region are working under State regulations, and that the prevailing averages of 18 to 20 cents per hour for cannery labor is in violation of the NRA industrial agreement which guarantees a 20-cent minimum. According to Nathan, his organization's demands to date have been ignored by cannery officials.

Espee Is Sued For $50,000 by W. C. Grube

MARTINEZ, Sept. 16.—Claiming that through the asserted negligence of the Southern Pacific company, he was injured and later had to have his right leg amputated, W. C. Grube today filed suit for $50,000 damages against the railroad company.

Grube's complaint sets forth that on March 15, 1933 he was employed as a brakeman by the company and was working on train 26 at Brentwood.

At that time he was forced to alight to turn a switch and in doing so caught his foot in a cable, which he asserts was negligently allowed to remain on the right of way. Grube charges he suffered severe cuts and abrasions about the right arm, chest and abdomen, and says that subsequently gangrene set in in his right leg and the limb was amputated to save his life.

He claims that it was the duty of the Southern Pacific to properly maintain its right of way and asks damages for loss of his leg.

DEATH TOLL IN STORM GROWS

TOKEN USE FORCED ON ALL BUYERS

SACRAMENTO, Sept. 16.—UP—California's sales tax stood at the cross roads today.

Its retention on the statute books depends largely on public reception of the unprecedented "split-penny" system of collection.

By endorsing the "split-penny" or token system, the State Board of Equalization launched the State tax to uncharted fields of taxation.

It was a drastic move and impelled only by realization the present collection plan would probably lead to tax repeal.

Operation of the new plan is simple. Merchants will issue tokens of one-eighth of a cent denomination. Buyers will periodically purchase a supply. Each five-cent purchase will require one token; ten cents, two tokens; a dollar, 20 tokens; and so on.

Adoption of the new collection system automatically abolishes the "breakdown" plan and the one-price set-up. Under the former, small priced articles were taxed far over the 2 1/2 per cent limit. A one-cent levy on a 15-cent purchase meant a tax of between six and seven per cent.

The one-price system, abhorred by most merchants, was inclusion of the sales tax without so specifying to the buyer.

The past week has been a nightmare for the equalization board. The sales tax repeal association brought court action against Attorney General U. S. Webb to compel his assistance in drawing up a title for initiative tax repeal petitions.

Trade merchants descended en masse on the board and demanded immediate changes in administration the levy.

Board members admitted they were banking on the "split-penny" system to quiet opposition to the levy. In a sense, this unprecedented method of tax collection will make or break the sales tax, it was believed.

Oakland Store Is Robbed By Lone Bandit

OAKLAND, Sept. 16.—A bandit held up Gallenkamp's shoe store at 1701 Telegraph avenue at noon today, herded two employees into a rear room at pistol point and fled with $70 from the cash register.

John T. Hall, store manager, and Edward Shea, a clerk, were in the place when the robber entered. He menaced them with a pistol and forced them to walk to the rear of the store.

Then he told Shea to "stay quiet" and commanded Hall to walk back to the front of the store and open the cash register.

Hall complied. The bandit took the money, fled to the sidewalk and disappeared in the noon crowds.

Dr. T. A. Gutherie and A. Weston Judkins, of Richmond, are hunting in Mariposa county.

Summon Jury For Trial Of Damage Suit

MARTINEZ, Sept. 16.—A panel of twenty-four taxmen was being summoned today for trial of a $50,000 damage suit filed by William Scarlett, railway brakeman, against the Atchinson Toplek and Santa Fe company, which will begin before Judge A. E. McKenzie next Wednesday.

Scarlett claimed that while descending from a freight train, his footing was impaired by a novel type of brace rod, and he was thrown to the ground, fracturing his wrist.

The accident occurred August 27, 1931, at Moraga, California, it was claimed.

He charges that the company with negligence in installing the new brace rod without warning to the plaintiff.

Following are those being summoned for jury duty:

Mrs. Florence Rapp, Martinez; William M. Ruiz, San Pablo; E. A. Smith, Concord; Frank Marcolla, Richmond; Frank X. Smith, Antioch; J. A. Molin, Martinez; C. A. Ricks, Martinez; Norman Arnold, Richmond; Mrs. Anna Munzer, Martinez; Elaine Oliveria, Concord; Joe Perasso, Richmond; Mrs. Hortense Stuart, Richmond; Helen Ferrin, Pittsburg; Mary Silvery, San Pablo; Charles E. Dawes, Richmond; Henry A. Pape, Phoebe; Jane V. Buck, Walnut Creek; Grant Gunnell, Searap; Charles Roderick, Martinez; Mrs. Winifred Brown, Richmond; Lottie Elliott, Richmond; Drusill Kramer, Pittsburg.

Senator Hurt In Auto Accident

MALTA, Mont., Sept. 16.—UP—United States Senator Burton K. Wheeler, his wife and three children were injured, none of them seriously, five miles west of Missoula, Mont., today when the automobile in which they were riding plunged into a ditch and turned over twice.

The accident occurred when a rear tire blew out.

EAST COAST LASHED BY HEAVY GALE

By UNITED PRESS
A hurricane smashing northward from the Carolina and Virginia coasts Saturday took a heavy toll of life and property damage, and battered shipping as far north as New England.

At least ten persons were dead or unreported in the storm and torrential rains along the coast and for miles inland in Pennsylvania, New York and New England.

Two were lost overboard at sea as the hurricane struck the Virginia coast, and another was missing and believed drowned.

A ketch en route from Woods Hole, Mass., to New Jersey, was reported missing.

The storm centered on the Carolina and Virginia coasts during the day, rotating circles, unroofing many houses, damaging or destroying bridges and communication lines.

Late in the day Coast Guard reports said it was veering to sea again, and weather bureau warnings indicated the center of the blow probably will miss New Jersey and New York.

Prisoner Given Probation; Asks Term In Prison

SALINAS, Sept. 16.—UP—Jack Thompson's insistence that he be sent to San Quentin prison failed to move the Monterey County Superior Court today.

The court directed Thompson to seek probation when he pleaded guilty to burglary charges. He was accused of stealing $10 from the Southern Pacific Station at Kins City.

Thompson didn't want probation, for it would mean giving the authorities his home address. He withheld that so that his mother would not learn of his plight. He said his home is "in the East."

The prisoner preferred to face a term of one to 11 years in order to keep his identity a secret.

Spain Is Facing Uprising Threat

MADRID, (Sunday) Sept. 17.—UP—Madrid was tense today with rumors of a possible uprising and the Civil Guards were ordered to remain in their barracks.

The report was that sergeants at the Madrid army barracks had attempted a revolt.

Detachments of Civil Guards were stationed in the communication building. All persons entering were subjected to search.

Coal Operators to Support NRA

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16.—UP—The long and bitter struggle over a code of fair practice for the coal industry came to an end tonight with operators representing practically the entire industry pledged to support an NRA agreement written after months of debate.

SURPRISE VERDICT OF JURY FAILS TO ASK FOR LENIENCY

SAN JOSE, Sept. 16.—UP—A jury here tonight found David A. Lamson guilty of the Memorial Day murder of his pretty wife, Allene, and by failing to recommend mercy automatically decreed he must hang.

DELIBERATES NINE HOURS

The jury, which included five women chosen "because they might be sympathetic to handsome Dave" returned its verdict at 8:37 p. m. after more than nine hours deliberation.

CLAIM OF STATE

The state claimed the Stanford University press executive crushed his wife's head with a piece of iron pipe, while enraged over sex frustration.

NO EMOTION BETRAYED

The dark haired defendant heard the pronouncement of his doom without betraying any emotion.

He stared unblinkingly at the court clerk as the verdict was read.

SISTERS RUSH TO HIM

His sisters, Dr. Margaret Lamson and Mrs. Willis Thoits, a his side every day of the trial, made a rush for him. Court at taches intervened and pushed them back.

Dr. Lamson sank into her chair as a stifled moan escaped her lips.

CASE TO BE APPEALED

Attorney Edwin M. Rea, chief of defense council, was the first to recover from the shock. He announced that an appeal would be taken at once.

Lamson was rushed from the courtroom under heavy guard. His sisters, weeping hysterically, followed him.

In the jail reception room he sank into a chair.

MEMORIAL DAY SCENE RE-ENACTED

A scene of the Memorial Day mourning when Allene Thorp Lamson's body was found in the bathroom of their campus home was repeated in the reception room.

Dr. Margaret Lamson entered and threw herself at the feet of her brother. She clasped him in her arms. Mrs. Thoits, the more stoical of the two, stood by, tears flowing down her face.

LAMSON TREMBLES VIOLENTLY

Lamson began to tremble violently. Perspiration flowed down his forehead and cheeks.

VERDICT REACHED WHISPERED

The jury had been back from its dinner recess only 35 minutes when a whisper leaked from the closely guarded room that the verdict had been reached.

The whisper spread, bringing scores flocking toward the courtroom. Bailiffs telephoned Judge Syre at his home. Prosecution and defense attorneys were sent for.

RECEIVES NEWS NONCHALANTLY

Lamson was playing bridge in a small office in the county prison. His three partners were his sisters and a third woman not identified.

His jailers said the curly haired collegiate defendant received the news nonchalantly. He had been weeping when the jury retired hours before.

Frank Thorp, brother of the slain woman, was among the first to come into the courtroom. He was accompanied by his cousin, Merrie, of Oakland.

DEAD SILENCE ENSUES

Lamson entered the courtroom without smiling for the first time since his trial started August 21. He did not speak.

STIMULANTS BAN, EDICT RACE BOARD

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 16.—UP—Strict supervision of horse racing with the idea of protecting the betting public against "irregularities" was indicated today in some of the rules the California Horse Racing Board made known it is considering.

In a formal statement, made through Chairman Carleton Burke, said that bonafide ownership of every horse starting in a race must be stated under penalty of permanent suspension.

"We do not intend to allow the practice of running a number of horses, the property of one owner in the name of several persons."

The statement said the board also was considering the French system for eliminating doping of horses.

"This system would provide," read the statement, "that the commissioners or stewards on any track may at the end of each race select any horse for a saliva test. The test is immediately given by a veterinarian in the presence of the owner or representative, and specimen taken to the chemist employed to make an analysis."

"The question of a receiving barn where horses shall be placed sometime before starting time of each race and looked after and guarded by a man approved by the racing board is being considered."

"This regulation if adopted will go a long way against permitting unscrupulous owners from administering stimulants to their horses."

The board assured would-be promoters that it is anxious to assist all applicants in every way possible "providing that these applicants, in the opinion of the board, have the right motive for the good of racing in California and the proper protection of the public."

The board also said the practice of giving out passes promiscuously to the public in order to stimulate mutual play will be prohibited.

Singing Wood, a bay colt by Royal Almistral out of Glade, was quoted at the liberal odds of 12 to 1 in the betting. He broke slowly but under a slashing ride by Jockey Bob Jones passed up the leaders and took a lead of a length and a half a quarter mile from the finish.

HAPPY TEAM OPENING AT FOX TODAY

Janet Gaynor and Warner Baxter are together again for the first time since they were seen in "Daddy Long Legs" in their latest picture for Fox Film, "Paddy, The Next Best Thing." It opens today at the Fox theater, and is a sequel to an engagement of two days.

"In this film, Miss Gaynor and Baxter respond to the popular demand for more pictures in which they are both featured. And the roles they portray are the type which gives each of them their greatest opportunities. Miss Gaynor is a young, impish colleen, who adds a strong dash of roguishness to her famous wistfulness and thereby creates a new kind of character for herself. Baxter, who much as he may try, cannot help falling head over heels for her. The story centers around the romances of these two persons. At first these romances are separate—Miss Gaynor for another man, and Baxter's for another girl. But the development of the plot finally does send them to each other and makes them admit their mutual love, even against their will.

The characters that they portray represent two different worlds—one the rugged life of a village on the Irish seacoast, and the other the cosmopolitan life of a much-travelled sportsman. It is this element of difference that is reported as the means of giving this film some of its most distinctive qualities.

Walter Connolly, highly reputed player of the dramatic stage, has a featured role in support of Janet Gaynor and Warner Baxter. Others in the cast include Harvey Stephens, Margaret Lindsay, Mary McCormack, Joseph M. Kerrigan, Fiske O'Hara, Claire McDowell, Merle Tottenham, Rose Linnor and Trevor Bland. "Paddy, The Next Best Thing" was directed by Harry Lachman from the famous novel by Gertrude P. A. Edwin Burke, who will be remembered for his screen authorship of "Mad Girl" and a number of other film successes, wrote the screen play and directed the dialogue.

Irene Dunne Is Appearing at Rich. Theater

The development of a woman's life through trials and hardships to a final haven of happiness provides the dramatic motif of "The Secret of Madame Blanche," new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer offering playing at the Richmond theater today with Irene Dunne in the starring role.

Miss Dunne is cast as an American chorus girl who marries a titled Englishman only to find tragedy at the end of her love affair. A series of engrossing dramatic circumstances befall the girl before she is finally united with the man of her dreams. Miss Dunne's characterization which covers a period of more than thirty years is said to surpass even her notable portrayals in "Cimarron," "Back Street" which established her as the screen's outstanding emotional actress.

The well-known stage and screen character actor, Lionel Atwill, plays the father-in-law who refuses to accept Miss Dunne.

Don't Take Pills For Constipation

Ordinary pills taken to relieve constipation merely force a movement of the bowels, making the liver disgorge its excess bile. That's why the trouble returns in a day or two and you have to swallow more pills.

What every constipated person needs is a good liver tonic like Plantax to thoroughly cleanse the digestive system of all foul secretions and at the same time restore the normal, lazy liver to proper working order. When this is done you will no longer have frequent headaches, coated tongue, yellow skin, sour stomach, gas, bilious attacks or other symptoms of constipation and liver trouble.

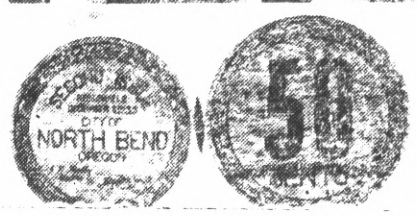

Plantax is made from the juices of harmless medicinal plants—Nature's own remedies—that act in a mild, easy way without weakening or irritating the organs. Try it tonight. Large bottle 21¢ at all good drug stores.

Time of sale and the balance upon confirmation of said sale, by said Superior Court, examination of title and recording of instruments of title to be at the expense of the purchaser; taxes, insurance and rents to be pre-paid as of date of delivery of deed.

Notarially attested and signed by the Clerk of said Superior Court at any time after the first publication of this notice and before the making of said sale.

Wooden Money

You're perfectly safe in taking wooden money at North Bend, Ore., for it's legal tender in that section. When banks closed and the city treasury emptied through non-payment of taxes, the city issued 25000 in wooden money—coined on myrtlewood, a wood found only in southwestern Oregon and the Holy Lands—to carry on daily business. The first issue was taken up last July and the experiment so successful, another issue, coined, Miss Virginia Cull shows a 25¢ and 5¢ coin. Below, 1¢ sides of a 25¢ and 50¢ piece.

NEW YORK INSIDE OUT By DON O'MALLEY

NEW YORK, August 16.—Deep into the wee small hours of the morning, down in old Greenwich Village, may be heard the staccato chatter of typewriters. Some of the machines are turning out "the great American novel." Others, operating interestingly slowly, are typing out poetry. But most of these machines, which click so incessantly as to be heard by down-and-out-artists who hope to see their brain-babies flashed from the screen.

In every garret and sub-cellar along Grace and Blue streets wild-eyed Willies are writing stories for magazines, hoping that after publication the Hollywood movie moguls will send for them. It's happen every day.

However, the distressing part of the whole situation is that the boys have all done an about-face and turned traitor to their literary ideals. These are the same scribblers who once went in for "art for art's sake." They didn't care what the public wanted. Cash was just a filthy by-product of their noble labors. But the old order changeth.

They have decided that writing for the sole purpose of putting the bacon on the table is considerably smarter than writing for the thrill of a work well done. Consequently their stories must conform to the present day standards demanded by movieland.

FILM companies these days are taking their most potent leading men, heretofore used for nothing but hand-kissing and turning them into rough, tough two-fisted bullies. They are crying for rougher and tougher material. That's why

LOVE GAME

James Noble Gillett

Bob Howard, young tennis sensation from California, defeats Cliff Garrison, celebrated star, in the semi-final of the town of Newport. Phil sauntered through the quiet old streets, but he was not interested in their architectural or historical associations. There was but one thought on his mind. He must win the watch when he had taken yesterday afternoon in a moment of madness.

He had no idea what watch it was, and it was so strikingly individual that he must be careful. But he must raise money on it immediately. For himself he did not care particularly whether the watch was paid for or not. He would just as soon give Cliff Garrison a punch in the nose and call a square at that. But Bob had differently about it. And after his having won the courts yesterday, nothing short of a miracle could keep Bob from winning the watch. The watch simply had to be sold. It was certainly worth many times two hundred and fifty dollars.

He tried one or two jewelers rather tentatively, but they fought shy of the expensive watch he offered them. At the last place to get the money. He had

CHAPTER III
BOB passed a restless night. He was worried by the unpleasant termination of the bridge game, and while it was quite true everyone had accepted Phil's promise to pay the next day, he couldn't see where Phil was possibly going to get the money. He had he blocked Bob's way. "I haven't received my money, Mr. Howard. If you go on the court now, I'll protest."

known Phil a good many years and was well enough acquainted with his financial position. When he had tried to talk to Phil about the matter his friend had merely laughed, saying, "Don't worry about it. I'll straighten everything out tomorrow."

So when Bob woke the next morning, he was not exactly surprised to see Phil completely dressed and ready to go out.

"If you wait for me, Phil, I'll be ready to go with you in ten minutes."

Phil shook his head. "No, thanks, Bob. I'm going out alone this morning."

the Greenwich Villagers are toiling unceasingly through all hours of the morning.

Perhaps starvation has killed the romance in their souls. They're going commercial with a vengeance. They're combing and cutting their hair, and washing their faces. Their fingernails are being excavated, their clothes pressed.

No longer can one drop into the cozy, intimate haunts of former village literary and hear soft talk of Balzac, Voltaire, Shakespeare, and Byron. The old guard has taken on an uptown enthusiasm, waving their hands and shouting animatedly. "How's the character for Jimmy Cagney?" and "Listen to this. I sure made a list out of John Barrymore. Listen..."

Just By The Way
All celebrities, minor and major, at some time during their time of fame come into New York; prominent attorneys, political personages, cinema stars, aviation heroes, evangelists, authors... they all come to Manhattan.

Realizing this, the management of every roadhouse in and around New York has an energetic little fellow on the payroll whose job is to seek out every incoming celebrity and drag him to his cafe. It makes a squib in the papers. It draws business, and it looks smart. Congressmen and Senators in town for the week-end from Washington love to be introduced from a dance floor. Sometimes it draws votes, and they love the spotlight. Authors have no objection. A personal appearance sells books. Evangelists are a little cagey—Almea Temple McPherson for instance, went the rounds a few years ago and was criticized for it.

Today the most convincing agent couldn't inveigle the psalm singer into a night club. An evangelist's place, Almea believes, is either on a transatlantic steamer in a divorce court or in her temple spreading the light.

more closely. "You know, I've never seen but one watch like that. And I wished I could have one like it. But I suppose it's no good wishing for anything at expensive at that."

Phil grinned uncomfortably. "Yes, it is a very expensive watch. But I'm rather tired of it myself. One of these days I'm going to sell it." He spoke in a thought almost without realizing the words were passing his lips.

"Then maybe you'll sell it to me some day," the youngster persisted. "I've been saving my allowance and have only got two hundred and fifty dollars saved up now, but..."

Phil swung round quickly. "How much did you say you had saved up?"

"Two hundred and fifty dollars," the boy replied. "I got it home in a bank."

For a moment Phil hesitated. There was something uncanny about this child possessing and wanting to spend exactly the amount of money he needed to get himself and Bob out of trouble.

"Where do you live, son?"

"I live here in Newport. We got a big house over on the cliff. But I'm going away to camp in just a few days. Mother, just let me stay here for the summer."

"If I sell you the watch for two hundred and fifty dollars," Phil said slowly, "will you promise not to show it around Newport here. I don't want any of my friends to know I've sold my watch."

"Oh, I won't show it, Mr. Morse," the boy said eagerly. "If I showed it, my mother or sister would take it away from me." Phil stared at him in amazement. "How did you know my name?"

THE youngster laughed. "Oh, I always know all the tennis players. You came here from California with Bob Howard, and I think he's grand. I told my sister so last night." The boy jumped to his feet eagerly. "If I run home and get the money now, will you wait here for me?"

For a moment Phil hesitated, then he said slowly, "Yes, I'll wait here."

He didn't know who the boy was, and he rather thought he didn't care to know. In two or three days he and Bob would be leaving Newport, and the boy would go off to camp, where no one would ever recognize the wrist watch. He sighed deeply. There was nothing to do but take a chance.

A few hours later, Phil strolled onto the porch of the club just as Garrison, surrounded by several of his friends, was almost physically blocking Bob Howard from going onto the court for his final match. Phil saw at a glance that Bob was trembling, and in that instant he lost the sense of shame for what he had done.

JUST as he stepped toward the group, he heard Garrison's sneering voice raised.

"Well, Mr. Howard, I haven't yet received my money for last night's game. If you go on the court now, I shall protest."

Before Bob could speak, Phil walked up to Garrison quickly, holding a fat envelope in his hand.

"This is what I promised you last night, Mr. Garrison. I might as well call it a square slice of gratitude at his friend, Bob."

Garrison was speechless with surprise as he took the envelope and saw the crisp bills inside it.

At the same moment, Bob's match was called. With a single glance of gratitude at his friend, Bob walked quickly out to the court, bowing in acknowledgment of the salves of applause that greeted his appearance.

LOCAL COUPLE QUIETLY WED. AT CEREMONY

Miss Doreen McNea and Paul Lanning, popular Richmond couple, were quietly married at a ceremony performed by Rev. Meryl Bish at the parsonage of the Stege Presbyterian church early yesterday morning.

The couple's only attendants were Miss Isabelle Myatt and E. Keith Ball. The couple stood before the fireplace in the dining room, which was banked with huckleberries. On the mantelpiece were two candelabra and a large bouquet of mixed flowers.

The bride was pretty in a pink crepe formal afternoon gown with large puffed sleeves with net insets of blue crepe. The neckline was also inset with blue. She wore black shoes and black maline hat and her corsage was of orchids and lilies of the valley.

Miss Myatt wore a gray suit with black hat and accessories, and carried gardenias and pink bouvardies. The bride's mother, Mrs. G. C. Bowditch, wore white, while the bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Lanning, was gown in blue flowered silk.

The couple have established their residence at the Spalding apartments on Eighth street. A honeymoon trip is planned later. The bride, the daughter of 436 B street, is a graduate of Richmond Union high school with the class of 1931, and for some time has been cashier at the local Fox theater.

Lanning, who formerly resided in Pasadena, is connected with the Greenway Service here. He is the son of Mrs. Lanning of Eighth street.

Food for Baby Requires Your Doctor's Expert Advice

FEEDING the baby seems like a very simple thing, and yet it has caused the doctor more gray hairs and sleepless nights than any other part of his practice.

No one knows how happy he is to learn that the mother is giving her baby plenty of breast milk and the baby is thriving on it. In that case most of the troubles are over. When the mother reports that her milk is scanty, and the baby is not satisfied, the doctor, as well as the mother's trouble begins.

MILK is the best food for babies for the first year and it should constitute the greater part of the food for the second year. The baby should not have cereals and starchy foods until after it has cut some teeth, as it cannot digest starches until the salivary glands of the mouth commence to function. Now, don't say, "I fed my baby starches and it got along all right."

YES, I know, I have fed and raised healthy babies on almost any kind of food. Indeed, I have them grow fat and hearty on foods that I knew their stomachs could not digest, but they did. They were exceptions and we are talking about babies in general. "But," you say, "my baby is a very sturdy one." No doubt it is, but its chances of digesting cereals and starches and remaining well are very poor.

OF COURSE, mother's milk is the only entirely satisfactory food for the baby, but sometimes it cannot be had, or the mother's health will not permit, then we must find some substitute. The only satisfactory substitute is cow's milk in some form or other. Our aim is to so modify the cow's milk that it will contain as near as possible the same constituents in the same proportion as mother's milk. We know how cow's milk differs from mother's milk and accordingly.

FIRST, cow's milk is slightly acid, mother's milk alkaline. Thus we usually add some lime, as lime water, to the milk. The proportion of proteins in cow's milk is 3 or 4 times as great as in mother's milk, and it is also much harder for the baby to digest. It forms hard curds when it comes in contact with the acid contents of the stomach. Consequently the proteins must, at first, be reduced to less than in human milk. The fat does not necessarily need much modification unless the bowels are too loose.

SUGAR in the form of lactose or milk sugar must be added. The sugar is not added to sweeten, but to furnish a proper amount of carbohydrate for the baby's nutrition. The adding of sufficient water to the other constituents makes a balanced ration. All this is necessary after you have obtained a pure, clean, healthy supply of cow's milk. I think you can understand that the modifying of cow's milk to feed the baby requires more than just a bottle of milk, a cup of water, a little lime water, a little sugar and a feeding bottle. It requires skill and knowledge and judgment.

DO NOT ask your kindhearted neighbor, who has raised three children and knows all about babies, how to fix the babies' milk. Your physician has raised hundreds of them and he does not know all about the subject yet. It takes time and patience and ingenuity and then the baby may not thrive on the food as prepared. You will have to study and find out what is not right and change it.

REMEMBER one mother's milk will often not agree with the baby of another mother of the same age and weight. The manufacturers of baby foods have spent much time and money in the effort to perfect a baby food that will be satisfactory. Each assures us that his is a perfect food. It may be easy to convince us that it is perfect, but harder to convince the baby. All may be good for some baby, but not for all babies. It requires the aid of a wise judicious physician to finally get a satisfactory baby food.

EXTRA POUNDS OF MIDDLE AGE TO BE AVOIDED

By JACQUELINE HUNT

THE thing that women fear most about being forty-five is being fat. The woman who is fat usually lacks the vitality and the good looks that are so essential a part of her charm.

She is hampered by her excess flesh and soon loses the likeness of movement that gave grace to her earlier years. Because plumpness is always associated with age, the woman who is overweight loses contact with her younger friends who should keep her mentally alert and interesting.

It takes character, courage and persistence to prevent obesity—even more to pull out of it once you have taken on several extra pounds—but it is possible if you will make the effort, and surely it is worth your while to hold on to a youthful figure. One thing you must realize: you cannot expect to reduce overnight without injuring your body seriously. It is a slow process, but you will win if you keep at it faithfully.

See your doctor before you try to reduce. In a relatively small number of cases, obesity, especially after you are forty, is caused by some glandular overactivity or deficiency. In these cases, dieting or strenuous exercise is searching dangerous. If your doctor finds that you are in good health, you can plan a diet and exercise routine to reduce your weight gradually.

There are a number of don'ts where dieting is concerned. Don't try any of the fat diets that tell you to begin your dieting with fasting and don't attempt any of those that tell you to completely eliminate any one food from your menus—even potatoes. Do not try to reduce more than eight or ten pounds in a month. Reducing too rapidly is a great strain on your body—and on your will power, and in addition the skin is left loose, flabby and dry by too rapid loss of weight.

It is unwise to cut all sweets, breads and cereals from your diet. Many women think that by doing this their scales will show speedier results. It is true that you will reduce faster, but your body will suffer. Meats and proteins in the diet cannot be digested unless sugars and starches are present to burn and neutralize the resulting acids.

Limit the amount of food you eat, but keep your diet well balanced. You can reduce the quantity of food one-third or one-half and still keep your meals appetizing. Include at least one pint of milk, two servings of raw leafy vegetables, cooked vegetables, a small serving of meat, fresh fruit and a small amount of bread and potatoes in each day's menus.

For breakfast you might have a glass of orange juice, a peach or boiled egg, a thin slice of toast with a small amount of butter, coffee (without sugar) or sweetened with a small amount of honey, and a glass of milk. For lunch have a large plate of crisp salad greens with diced tomatoes, celery, cucumbers or shredded carrots, a thin slice of whole wheat bread or crackers, a glass of milk or a cup of tea, and a piece of fresh fruit. For dinner have tomato juice or clear soup, a medium sized serving of lean meat or fish, a small potato, a salad with salt and vinegar, a beverage and another serving of fruit, a cookie or gelatin for dessert.

There, isn't that attractive? You will feel a bit hungry the first day or two because rich foods like fatty meats and cheeses are omitted and butter, sugar and bread are cut to a minimum for health. After a few days, however, you will enjoy this wholesome diet and feel better because of it. Would you like to have menus for eighteen days of dieting and information about calories and weight-weight tables? If so, send me a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

MODES AND MANNERS

QUESTION: "If fruit cocktail is the first course served at a dinner, should it be on the table when the guests enter the dining room?"

ANSWER: Either way is correct. It is customary, however, for fruit cocktail or grape fruit to be in place when the guests take their places at the table. The first course goes on the table just before the guests come in. They should find it chilled and fresh.

... SPEAKING OF STYLE ...

By IRENE HALL

The latest blouse models for fall are of original designs and have more than a suggestion of following neck, straight line of modern architecture. A high neckline, square wide shoulders and slender waist setting are characteristics of all three models. Note the interesting use of novelty metal clasps. Heavy silk novelties of woolsens would be appropriate for choice.

New York — It is altogether likely that you have, from time to time, listened in to discussions about the hour glass silhouette—whether it would ever be revived or not. Well, the answer is yes. Dresses, coats and suits—everything—must fit, and it must fit a figure that admits to have curves and a natural waistline. When you are tempted by the phrase "straight silhouette," remember that it means straight from the waist and not necessarily to the hem.

Meal Tissues Quite unexpectedly metal tissues of various kinds have come to the fore, possibly because of the Chinese note which is being sounded not only at home but abroad. Many of these metal tissues of the body one wants to have this season.

Marital of Amand is among those who go in rather strong for the "straight silhouette," but she is not averse to velvet, or velvety woven skirts with matching coats. The tunic is recurrent in all collections and seems to be a particularly popular feature. Feather boas and trimmings, ribbons and ornaments are all being ready to reconstruct the classic Decade costume.

Naturally skirts sweep behind after the fashion of the past and anything can happen from the knee down. There are even some sketched skirts of Directoire inspiration.

Juliu Maniu, Ex-Premier Of Rumania... The Man Who Had to Say No

FEW politicians have had to say "no" as often during their careers and under such dangerous conditions as Juliu Maniu of Rumania. It was his political fate to be cast in the role of watchdog, a bulwark against the forces which he considered menacing to the stability of Rumania. He seldom had an opportunity for carrying out a constructive political program.

Maniu's first appearance in the role in which he was to star in later years, was as spokesman for the Rumanian minority in Transylvania, in the Hungarian parliament, where he served for more than a decade prior to the World War. When his leadership had consolidated the minority and had begun to be recognized, he got his first lesson in saying "no." This was when the former monarchy offered a series of compromises and counter proposals to his demands for recognition of the racial and cultural unity of Transylvania.

Even when the Hungarians succeeded in defeating him for reelection, he held to his original program. He refused, in the name of Rumanians, to make a declaration of loyalty, and was sent to the Italian front, where he served two years as lieutenant of artillery. He returned in time to assume leadership again of the Transylvanian program at the time of the break-up of the Austria-Hungarian monarchy. It was largely due to his efforts that all enemies for federation with the new Hungary were rejected and Transylvania severed all connections with her former rulers.

HERE began the second period in his career of fighting against heavy odds. The aged Ferdinand had allowed the reins of government to be taken over by Ionel Bratianu, whose policy was directed to the rescue of the large landowners. From 1918 to 1922, Maniu carried almost a lone campaign against this system. Public opinion finally came to his aid following the death of King Ferdinand in 1927, and the regency which ruled for nearly three years thereafter in the name of the boy prince Michael.

Maniu, as Premier, engineered the return of King Carol from his self-imposed exile in 1930, and his appointment as Premier under King Carol was received with wide acclaim. But here again, Maniu's political fates apparently had destined him to return to frustration. In addition to the difficult task involving the economical crisis which was beginning to pinch Rumania, he discovered that his former pupil and protégé, Carol, had returned to his native land with distinct views as to a ruler's prerogatives. Maniu resigned as leader of the National Peasant Party in 1930 and returned from public life. He remained in comparative obscurity until the fall of 1932, when a conflict between the leader of his party, Premier Alexander Vaida-Voevod, and the Foreign Minister, Titulescu, threatened to wreck the party.

In order to save his party, Maniu returned as party leader and assumed the premiership once more. Again it soon became apparent that Premier Maniu and his sovereign could not get along together and he retired early in January 1933.

Despite this rift in political thought between Maniu and King Carol, Maniu remained personally fond of his King and continued his efforts to effect a reconciliation between the King and Queen Helena. Maniu was of the opinion that it was necessary to strengthen the position of the country, at home as well as abroad. It was he who broke Helena to Bucharest in the fall of 1932 to effect a financial settlement and to attempt again a reconciliation between the two. But he turned against her following her attacks in the British press against Carol, because he saw in such tactics only damage to Rumania.

Maniu was the leading defender of democratic institutions of his political generation in Rumania. His patience was virtually inexhaustible, and he was willing to wait and work for years to achieve his ends through legal methods. It was his defense of parliamentarism and legal procedure which led to his break with Carol and his retirement to wait in the hope for a wider development which would justify his faith in parliamentary and legal methods. He was modest to an extreme. An instance of this was when the newspapers wished him to make some comment on the advent of his sixtieth birthday. He declared that Rumania had "other worries without honoring me."

STYLES MIRROR SOCIAL CHANGE AVERS EXPERT

By MARIAN MAYES MARTIN

THE next man you hear referring to fashion as drivel, or all rot or piffle or whatever phrase he uses to convey his contempt, ask him to consider a bit how fashions are born—and why. If he refuses to take your comments seriously, show him this article written by M. D. C. Crawford for one of the Paris child publications. Do not let him brand him as one of those hedonistic materialists either. For he isn't. Mr. Crawford is by way of being a historian and curator of museums, author of books, non-fiction and otherwise, an authority of textiles and other things, and is one man whose intelligence is enough to recognize the causes which become effective fashions.

"A NEW epoch means new clothes. Great social changes always influence the style of apparel. This has been true as far as we have any active record of civilization. It was possible to collect the material, the complete history of civilization would be clearly reflected in costume. Wars, new discoveries, inventions, migrations, new trade routes, physical and mental revolution—each finds its own level in clothes. It should not surprise us, then, that both the World War and the present economic developments should have resulted in great changes of fashion."

"AFTER the World War, Europe was faced not only with a vast relief of the emotions of fear, but also with a loss and misery so deep and so devastating and so widespread that it could find expression only in social extravagance which swept aside old barriers, customs and restraints. The flapper in this country, with her short skirts and her careless figure, was the reflection of a much grimmer phenomenon in Europe. Millions of boys of marriageable age were either dead or mutilated, but the young women still lived with their lives before them. Fashion for several years reflected a fierce, daring and abundant sex competition. The sexes became almost equal, socially and economically. Women, deeply resenting a world created by men's folly, refused longer to be ruled by the artificial limits men had set to sex. In this rebellion there was much that was intellectually and spiritually honest."

"BUT, again, the mental attitude has shifted. The world has turned its intellect and energy to the solution of intricate and involved economic problems. In Washington and New York, in Berlin, Vienna and Moscow, in Rome, London, Sydney, Tokyo and Bombay, men and women are meeting in social gatherings to discuss the kaleidoscopic changes of the world's news. London offers a conservative resistance to innovation. Germany writhes in agony. Italy has regimentered its regions to the conquest of peace. Russia, like a blind Atlas, attempts to lift the world on its broad shoulders. Japan plays with the glamorous but grim trifles of military power. We have no ancient economic formulae into a new world and are off at top speed on our greatest social adventure."

"The restlessness of the post-war period, which has stirred society to the four winds of whim and chance, individualism and realism now draws people together for serious but victorious discussion of passing events, and as at all such times, women have again assumed a dramatic and plastic expression for these gatherings. It was so in the Renaissance. It was so in the French Revolution. It is true today. We will not lose the woman of affairs. She will be freer than she once was. But there will be a new dignity, a greater feminine charm. The woman will dress to the character of the new mode of intellectual activity rather than of physical flamboyance. We approach the age of the salon, the age of reason, the age of serious pictorial effect. Hence, we see the long, sweeping lines, the silhouette intended for repose, the classical figure to fit the mode and to dramatize the mode. Between the early Eighteenth Century of triviality and the early Nineteenth Century of keen mental activity there is the sharpest line of fashion. Our hectic years of 1921 to 1929 mark the feminine playboy, but 1933 and 1934 will see again the woman of charm, poise and dignity, keenly following the intellectual progress of the world about her, swaying the thought about her with charm and repose and dignity, creating the illusions of the fashions, reflecting the new tempo of society."

HOW TO FEED SCHOOL CHILD

By JUDITH WILSON

WHAT to give the children is a problem that mothers must face three times a day every day of the year. Every mother tries to apply in the most practical way possible all that science has discovered about human nutrition. The rules she needs to follow, however, are simple. The difficulty lies in securing variety—and now that school is again under way, in planning the menus so that the basket lunch does not interfere with a balanced diet.

Every mother knows that children need a certain quantity of milk daily and cooked vegetables and fruits. They also need a good proportion of "energy" and building foods like butter, bread and potatoes. Arrange your meals so that the children get all of these foods and train them to like and eat the food placed before them. Try to overcome any food prejudices the children may have by serving them attractively and varying the recipe frequently.

Planned Menus Plan the menus for each day as a unit. A quart of milk daily for each child is the first rule. All of it need not be taken in liquid form. Some of it is served with cereals for breakfast, some in creamed vegetables, soups and desserts. He should, however, have a cup of each meal and one after school if he feels hungry and it will not spoil his supper.

Hot Lunches Most mothers like to give the child his heaviest meal at noon, but obviously this is impossible if the child must carry a lunch to school. Sandwiches are the mainstay of such a lunch, and special care must be taken to see that there are sufficient hot foods and vegetables in his dinner to balance a starchy, cold lunch. Hot soup or hot cocoa carried to school in a thermos bottle will help make the lunch more appealing and balanced.

Vegetables Important Vegetables are essential in the child's diet. They furnish roughage to keep his system in order, and the vitamins and minerals which provide for his growth and resistance to disease. Three of these vitamins are found in milk, but others, vitamin C especially, is found only in tomatoes, oranges, and in small amounts in other fruits and vegetables. Since this vitamin is destroyed by ordinary cooking methods, as many foods as possible should be given to the child raw. One large potato a day will give the child sufficient iron and calories for energy.

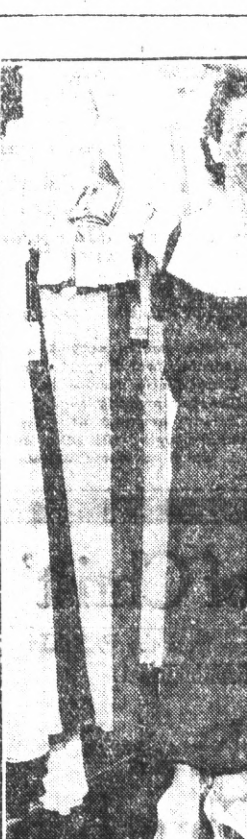

Fruit Necessary A variety of fruit is desirable but not necessary. Orange, tomato or pineapple juice should be given for its vitamin C, usually.

MENUS
Breakfast	Orange Juice
Cooled Whole Wheat Cereal with Top Milk
Toasted Raisin Bread	Cocoa
School Lunch
Chopped Vegetable Sandwich
Deviled Egg
Cherry Jam Sandwiches
Bananas
Milk (in Thermos)
Dinner
Live Lobster
Creamed Celery
Bread and Butter
Peach Tapioca	Milk

ally at breakfast. There should be at least one other fruit, either fresh or well-cooked dried fruits such as peaches, apricots or prunes.

Eggs Daily An egg a day is another rule for children. Its yolk contains an appreciable amount of the sunshine vitamin D found in cod liver oil. Sometimes it should be disguised as a dessert, stuffed or hard cooked and put in the lunch basket or combined with vegetables, fruit juice or raw in milk drinks.

BEAUTY QUEEN MODELS CLOTHES

Home-Making

By ALINE STERN

Summer salads are made more palatable if served on cold dinner plates.

Your guests will clamor for the recipe for this potato salad. Add half a cup of crushed potato to two cups of cold boiled potatoes. Also add a cup of chopped celery, washed and drained, and a cup of a mixture of half a cup of mayonnaise and half a cup of sour cream. Garnish with hard cooked egg which has been pushed through a sieve.

Save yourself the trouble of buttering bread for sandwiches by incorporating the butter with your sandwich mixture, whatever it may be. This is accomplished by creaming the butter in a bowl before mixing in the other ingredients.

Some prefer a mayonnaise spread on sandwiches to keep them moist and fresh, particularly for meat mixtures.

You and Your Child

WISE PARENTS ARE FORGIVING

By JANE HERBERT GOWARD

AFTER a child has suffered punishment for some misdemeanor, he turns again to play willing to forget the unpleasant interlude. But parents seldom seem to have similar memories about such matters, and he can be a common cause for conflict in the parent-child relationship.

The child learns from punishment when he is deserving. He can see the justice of it. The parent allows himself to become disturbed by the child's apparent indifference. It does not strike him that the child can have learned the lesson which he meant to impart without showing it. He makes the mistake of blaming up the subject again and again. What he really hopes for is some expression of regret from the child. Sometimes he prompts it with, "Say you are sorry," and without realizing it, he is nagging and antagonizing the child.

Parent Can't "Take It" All parents mean to do the fair thing for their children. They provide comfortable homes, they try to give them education at advantages, and they even try to be their children's "pals." But when a child makes a mistake they somehow forget our intention to deal fairly with him. We only can think that he needs correction, and we are inclined to jump to conclusions in judging him.

In the role of authority therefore, the parent is quick to blame, but unfortunately, he is not also quick to admit his mistake when justice miscarries. "I was a bit hasty yesterday, son, and I'm sorry. Your mother tells me that you helped a blind man home clear to the other end of town. Why didn't you tell me? You've been coming home late to dinner so much lately that yesterday struck me as being one time too much, and I thought I'd put a stop to it." What child's respect wouldn't be won by such an attitude of fairness? And what child under the circumstances wouldn't exert a special effort to overcome a habit of lateness?

When Storing Linens

If you wish to keep linens from turning yellow after you have washed and ironed them, put away in dark blue tissue paper. This will keep them from turning yellow. You may also put a piece of camphor gum in the chest. Or, you may blue a sheet, an old one, a deep blue and pack the linens in it; then tie up secure from dust. When storing away linens, do not put any away with the starch in them.

Beeswax Your Thread

Keep a piece of beeswax in your workbox and rub the thread along this before using for sewing on buttons. It will strengthen the thread considerably and, consequently, the buttons will stay on very much longer.

MEXICANS HAVE CELEBRATION AT RICHMOND HALL

The 123rd anniversary of the independence of Mexico was observed last night by the local Mexican colony at a program held in the Winter's hall. The affair was well attended. The program was as follows:

- 1.—An overture by the Jimenez Junior orchestra.
  - 2.—A short talk by the chairman of the Mexican patriotic society.
  - 3.—A reading of the declaration of independence by the secretary of the Mexican patriotic society.
  - 4.—Musical number.
  - 5.—Recitation by the young Valentin Galvan.
  - 6.—Songs by Agustin Rosales.
  - 7.—A talk by a representative of the C. G. R. society, C. Teodoro Alvarez, Sr.
  - 8.—Violin and piano numbers by the Velazquez brothers.
  - 9.—A talk, "Benito Juarez," by C. Ismael Juarez.
  - 10.—A talk by a representative of the A. H. A. Lodge, "Benito Juarez."
  - 11.—Address by C. Juan Francisco, representative of the Mexican commission of Richmond.
  - 12.—Saxophone quartette by the Senora Jimenez.
  - 13.—Address by Hilario Chavez.
  - 14.—Song selections by Senor Saturnio Garcia.
  - 15.—American and Mexican hymns by the orchestra.
  - 16.—The grand ball continuing until midnight.
- The committee for the celebration include: Senorita Josefina Coral, Lupe Padilla, Maria Talavera, Josefina Alvarez, Senor Jesus Carrera, Samuel Aguilar, Sabino Corral, Pedro Malanche, Juan Barragan, Jose R. Acuna, J. Encarnacion Rosales, Manuel Estrada, Hilario Meza and Rufino Ramirez.

Passion Play to Be Presented at The Stege Church

One of the most interesting films of the year will be presented this evening at the Stege Presbyterian church, Rev. Meryl Bish announced yesterday.

Colored "movies" of the world famous Passion Play of Oberammergau will be presented at 7:30 at the church parlors this evening. The film is entitled, "The Life of Christ" and is said to be one of the most beautiful sacred pictures ever to be presented here.

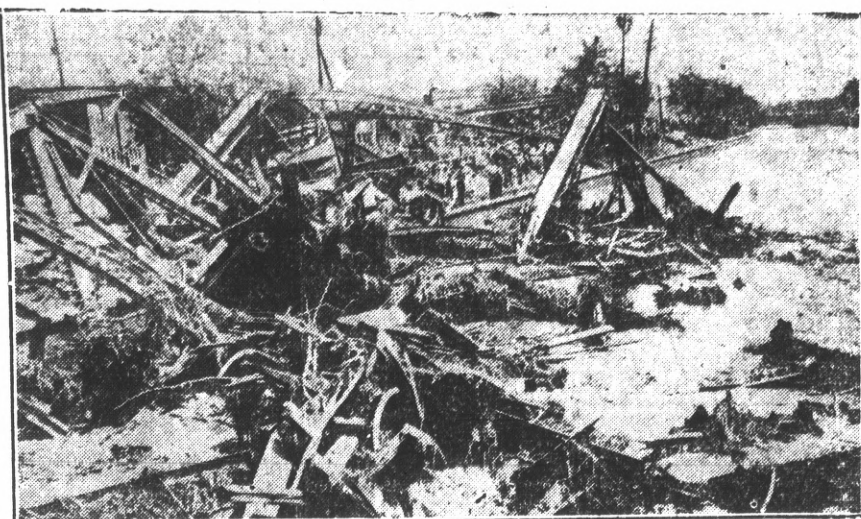

This is an opportunity, Mr. Bish declared last night, for Richmond

Unique Display In Girls Doll Parade

Hundreds of Richmond young girls participated yesterday in a doll parade down Macdonald avenue, thus finalizing the close of Fall Fashion events in Richmond. Jacqueline Clements was awarded first prize for the most beautiful entry in the parade. She wore yellow dress and her huggy was decorated in the same color.

Second prize was awarded to Pearl Harvey for her "Buy in Richmond" huggy. She carried a "Buy in Richmond" sign on her huggy and the front of the huggy was decorated with a large dollar sign.

Most Original Entry. The prize for the most original entrant was awarded to Miss Betty Lou Adolph for her depression huggy. The huggy was decorated in black crepe paper and was made to resemble a coffin carrying the remains of Mr. Depression.

Patricia Bartlett won the "most humorous" prize with her Mikey Mouse huggy. She had Mikey Mouse and Minnie Mouse dolls in the huggy and was dressed as Mickey Mouse.

The prize for the youngest entrant in the parade was awarded to Twyla June Tabler, aged 11 months. She wore a dress of yellow crepe paper and her huggy was decorated with the same material. The little Miss was so small she could hardly push the huggy.

Honorable Mention. Honorable mention was given to "and best in each of the classes." The second place entrants were so close to the winners that the judges thought they should be given some special mention.

Lucille Damon was given honorable mention in the most beautiful class. She was dressed as an old-fashioned girl with a green and white dress. Her huggy was decorated with the same material as her dress.

Honorable mention for the "Buy in Richmond" huggy was awarded to Dona Poore with her Roosevelt huggy. She had a picture of Pres-

El Cerrito Auto Crash Victims on Road to Recovery

Edmund Allen, driver of a car in an accident early Saturday morning at Fink Lane and San Pablo avenue in El Cerrito, was reported to be doing "as well as can be expected" at the Martinez hospital last evening. Allen suffered a possible broken back in the accident that injured three other persons.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Parker, of Richmond, who were arrested by El Cerrito police on charges of intoxication as a result of the crash, were released from the El Cerrito City Jail yesterday afternoon on $25 bail each. They will appear for hearing in the police court soon.

S. W. Hough of Berkeley and his mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Hough, who were also injured in the crash, were released from an Albany hospital and were returned home. They are rapidly recovering from their injuries. Mrs. Parker was cut and bruised but suffered no other ill effects.

In the meantime police are still searching for an unknown woman who was riding in the Allen car with the Parkers when it collided with a machine driven by Hough. The mysterious woman left her hat and one of her shoes behind her in her flight from the scene of the crash.

To Condemn Land For Tank Farm Hill Cut Off

Asserting that the property is needed by the county of Contra Costa as right of way for a new road to be known as the "tank farm short cut" between San Pablo road and Twenty-third street, in Richmond, District Attorney J. P. Hoy yesterday filed condemnation proceedings against five Richmond land owners.

J. H. Rumrill, Calista Rumrill, Hattie Carlisle, Mary Helms and Claire Marie Johnston are named defendants in the action.

The suit was ordered instituted by Hoy at a meeting of the board of supervisors January 4, 1932. It was stated.

Property sought to be condemned included portions of the Richmond land company tract on Twenty-third, Twenty-second and Twenty-first street, Broadway and Rose streets.

Deer Congestion is Reported In State

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M. (U.P.)—One of those reports you very seldom hear any more is being investigated by Paul Reddington, chief of the U. S. Biological Survey. A congestion of deer is reported on the Shelton range in the Sacramento Mountains, Reddington left Albuquerque with John Gatlin, state biological survey leader, and M. E. Musgrave, regional forest and game expert.

to his sisters, already seated near his table. The judge and jury filed in soon after.

Judge Syer appeared to be in a hurry. A dead silence followed their appearance.

The verdict was then announced.

PRISONER BEING GUARDED

Within three hours after the verdict, silence surrounded the principals in the case. Lamson was placed in a jail cell with two other prisoners.

Every article had been removed from the cell and deputy sheriffs stood guard outside the door.

GIVEN SLEEP SEDATIVE

Soon after he entered the jailroom, the condemned man called for a copy of Shakespeare works which had been taken from him. He read until the lights were extinguished. He was given a sedative and soon was reported asleep. His sisters went home in closed cars.

THOUGHTS OF MOTHER

SAN JOSE, Sept. 16.—UP—David A. Lamson's thoughts after he heard his death demanded by a jury, were of his mother, his jailers said tonight.

"My God, my mother," the prisoner cried as he was led into his cell.

His mother, Mrs. Genevieve Lamson, did not appear at the trial. She was said to be "ailing." She remained in the campus home, scene of the tragedy, attending the Lamson child.

Jail attaches took every precaution to prevent the doomed man from killing himself.

BIRTH RATE SLOWING UP IN RICHMOND

W. C. T. U. NOTES

By MRS. CARL W. LONGACRE
ALL ALCOHOLIC DRINKS
BARRED FROM NEW MEXICO

Three point two beer is illegal in New Mexico. The Supreme court of that state on July 31, 1933 went on record as holding that Federal permission to sell 3.2 beer does not absolve a defendant of crime liability under the Constitution and laws of New Mexico.

The action of the Supreme court reversed the decision previously given by a judge of the Second District, in the case of a dealer in Albuquerque who admitted selling beer but claimed that it was "not intoxicating." The contention that the state liquor law was unconstitutional was set aside, by the high court which held that the constitution itself is self-executing and the provisions therein contained are complete.

A penalty clause in the New Mexico constitution added weight to such view. As to the technicality that the law is unconstitutional because of a difference in the title and text of the bill, where one refers to "intoxicating liquors" and the other to "non-intoxicating liquors," the Supreme court held that so long as the title embraces the general provisions of the bill, that is sufficient to make it constitutional.

The part of the New Mexico constitution which was under consideration bars "liquor of any kind whatsoever containing alcohol." This was held sufficient to make illegal the sale of any alcoholic liquors, no matter how small the alcoholic content, and so maintains this as a dry state in spite of the Federal pronouncement exempting 3.2 liquor from the national prohibition law. New Mexico is to be commended for the stand taken by their supreme court.
